

Character Profile: Mike Coffey

Physical Description (Size, Weight, Defining Attributes...): About 5 ft. 9, with a lean (almost malnourished), but muscled frame. Slight dark circles under cynical brown eyes hint at his general lack of optimism.

Gender: Male.

Age: 18

Personality/Nature: Seems hard, cynical at first, but this is a thin veneer that hide a caring heart, especially for his Mother and younger brother.

Ambitions/Desires: To live to 21. To spray paint many brick walls. Maybe to write.

Is mostly seen as: A loner. An outsider.

Sees her/himself as: A lonely hero. A protector.

Loves: His Mother and younger brother.

Believes in: Himself (most of the time).

Trusts: His friend Jack (most of the time).

Fears most: (see "Hates")

Fights for:

Hates: His drunken, abusive stepfather, Ted. Also, the crap motel where he lives.

Most important event in life up to date: Helping to get Ted away from his Mom, by getting Ted busted and put in jail.

Most influenced by: Musicians. Iggy Pop, Beck, Johnny Cash.

Best Friends: Jack Owen, possibly (but would never admit it).

Worst Enemies: Ted, definitely.

Relationship/Family status: Single. Had a couple of what you might call affairs with local girls. Nothing serious.

Social/Ethnic Background: Caucasian. No god in his life. Not in his neighbourhood.

Occupation: Unemployed, usually.

Education: Some high school. Didn't finish, but might one day.

Hobbies: Spray paints his life story on empty walls, or on inside walls of houses before they get torn down.

Special Skills/Talents: Can paint a little, write a little. Knows three guitar chords. Enough for most punk songs.

Flaws: Being too nice and happy all the time. Ha ha.

Disabilities: See "too happy" above.

Special behaviorism(s), quirks,...:

Style (Dress/Life Style): Jeans, t-shirt.

Name: Mike Coffey

Nickname: Mike.

TV Series, this character is in: A novel called "Owe Nothing", by E. John Love.
